Molloy College B.A. Sociology Program
Sociology offers a unique perspective on the complex and changing world we live in and has abundant career opportunities. As one of the most stimulating majors offered at Molloy College, a Bachelor’s degree in sociology will provide you with a wider view of society while preparing you to make an impact on the world. Your studies will help you develop the skills you need for a successful 21st century career. Studying sociology can help you foster your creativity, innovation, critical thinking, and analytic problem-solving and communications skills. Sociology will challenge you to see the world through the lens of different cultures and communities and give you opportunities to collaborate with others in developing multi-cultural and global understandings.

St. John’s University M.A. Sociology

Sociology is the study of social life, social change, and the social causes and consequences of human behavior. Sociologists understand social inequality, patterns of behavior, forces for social change and resistance, and how social systems work. The 33-credit Master of Arts in Sociology at St. John's University fosters the development of critical thinking, analytical, and research skills alongside an understanding of sociological theory and urban and global perspectives.

Our program emphasizes the study of racial, class, and gender inequality; community and urban development; and globalization and social movements, allowing you to choose a course of study that fits your interests and career goals. The program also offers a one-year hybrid applied option that will allow you to gain hands-on experience with learned concepts and skills, while increasing affordability. All professionals gain an edge from being able to research and analyze information, and graduates holding an M.A. in Sociology are well-equipped to answer the demand for these skills.
