Collaboration and Coteaching:
Integrated Service Delivery for English Language Learners

Friday, June 5, 2015; 8:30 a.m.-3 p.m.
Wilbur Arts Center, Hays Theatre, Rockville Centre campus

Exhibitor Information

You are invited to exhibit at the Collaboration and Coteaching Conference that will take place at Molloy College in Rockville Centre on June 5, 2015.

This all-day conference takes a close look at effective teacher collaboration for the sake of English language learners (ELLs). Participants will examine essential frameworks for English as a New Language (ENL), and innovative approaches to integrated instruction that benefit all students.

The conference will also feature a panel presentation showcasing Long Island teachers and administrators who have had sustained success with the implementation of co-teaching practices for the sake of ELLs in the past 3 to 5 years.

We expect 200 K-12 teachers and administrators to attend. Teams of teachers and administrators are strongly encouraged to attend together: English as New Language (ENL) Teachers should sign up with their general education coteaching partners

The fee to exhibit is $400 ($300 non-profit) for the day, from 8:30 a.m. – Noon. However, space is limited, so only 6 exhibitors will be able to attend. Exhibitors will be provided with a 6 ft. table and one conference admission (additional admission: $50 each). The exhibit tables will be in the Hays Theater lobby in the Wilbur Arts Center (where the breakfast, the Opening Session, the morning break, lunch and the Closing session will be held).

Please fill out the Sponsor/Exhibitor form and return it to me by May 1, 2015 if you are interested in exhibiting at the conference. You will be billed for the $400 ($300 non-profit) fee. I look forward to your participation and support.
