Energeia is a Greek word used by Aristotle to describe the demonstration of inner character in deeds. It is goodness plus efficiency; it is focused, purposeful, meaningful, effective, energetic action.

Molloy College invites you to join Energeia for Teens, a Long Island high school student leadership and community service-learning program now in its sixth year. Energeia for Teens participants select focus areas that concern them, and use their problem-solving skills to develop and implement creative local community service projects. Build your leadership skills, be part of a team engaged in civic issues, and make new friends from across Long Island.

Topics in prior years included teen driver safety, bullying, poverty, substance abuse, self-esteem issues and the environment. One participant said “Energeia for Teens was one of the most life-changing experiences I ever had. It taught me how to venture out in my community and use my potential to really make a difference.”
